

The Indiana law restricting telemarketing is one of the best pieces of legislation that our state has ever enacted and it should not be weakened. The law allows for voluntary participation on the part of homeowners and it has cut down drastically on unwanted and unsolicited calls that I consider an invasion of privacy.

Sincerely,

Thomas F. Gruber